Purdy's Coffee Co.

Richmond, Kentucky

This project required the selective demolition of the lower level façade, and a design solution to “bring back” a Victorian flavor to the first level. The cast iron pilasters were carefully restored, and a complementary paint scheme was applied. Purdy’s has been a welcome addition to the historic downtown of Richmond since it’s opening in 2012. This project is routinely referred by the Richmond Board of Architectural Review as an example of how to properly execute a renovation in an historic context.
